IN GRATITUDE FOR PAST INSPIRATION WE DEDICATE

MR. CURTIS H. DILLON

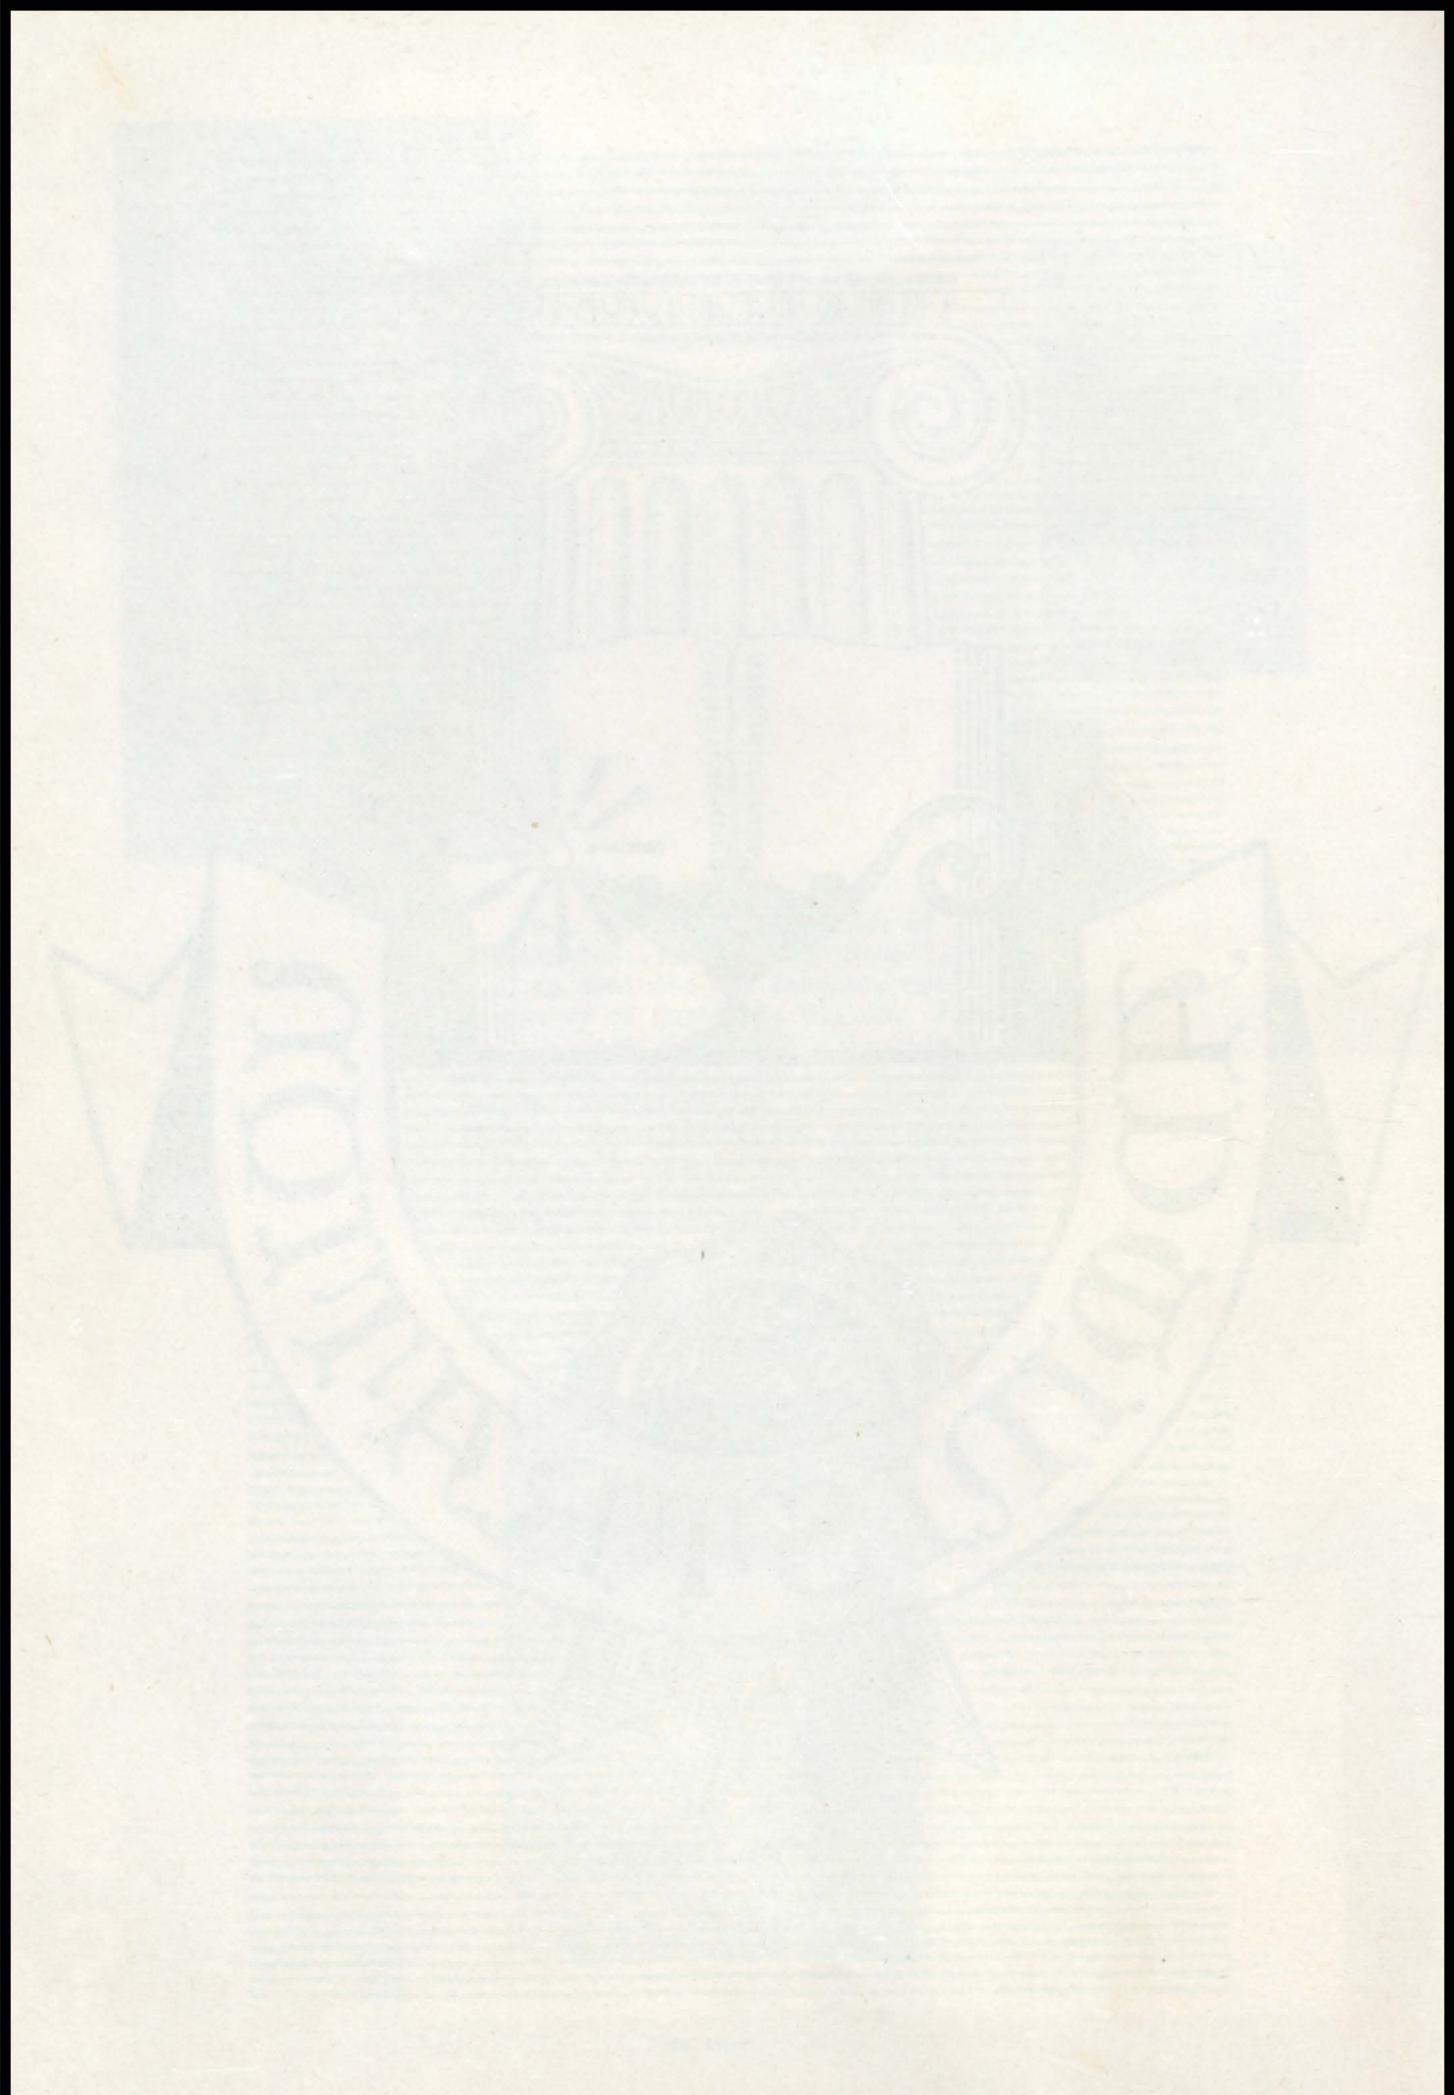

We, the graduating class of Lincoln Consolidated High School, wish to dedicate our senior annual in memory of Curtis H. Dillon. For twenty-three years Mr. Dillon was a maintenance man at our school. He helped lay bricks for the first Lincoln Consolidated School. Mr. Dillon will long be remembered by us for his efforts, and for his carving of our first basketball trophy. Mr. Dillon was born in Mooreville, Michigan on April 2, 1871, and died May 7, 1948.

TO THOSE FOLLOWING WE LEAVE

CLASS WILL

I, Ruth Hammond, leave my patience to stay with one man to Teresa Stefina.

I, Joyce Ackron, leave my waste collection of absent slips to Nancy Hinzmann.

I, Larry Jensen, leave my talking ability to Wendel Foutch and David Ballard.

I, Alice Towler, leave my "speed" to any Junior who needs it. (Hubert?)

I, Dick Wright, (Senior Class Romeo), leave my charm to those more than lucky (?) Junior boys.

I, Lee Cischke, leave my Ipana smile and about five inches to Raymond Blandowski.

I, Shirley Waters, leave my long, dark hair to Marge Fauser.

I, Chuck Orrison, leave my ticket collecting horn that automatically honks at Belleville girls to Walter Craycraft.

I, Connie Clark, leave my fiery red hair to the school to be hung over the wastebaskets in study hall so the students in the rear can see where they throw.

I, Leonard Burrell, leave my booming voice and dramatic ability to Tom Markham.

I, Stan Harris, leave my ash tray in the pines to John Iwaniec.

I, Tank Gross, leave my football helmet to anyone with a large enough head to wear it.

I, Shirley McFall, leave my box seat and the square next to me in Government class to James Hudgens and Frank Korican.

I, Peg Borgstadt, (the Luella Parsons of Lincoln), leave my ability to gain inside information to Lynn Diehl.

I, Larry Schanz, leave myself to Yvonne Drow.

I, Carol Day, leave Wally's and my seats in the show to Mary Lou Farchione and-----

I, Jerry Allen, (Tommy Dorsey II), leave my horn, wind, and love for music to Don Zauner.

I, Lowell Smith, leave my "bolt and jolt" taxi cab to Marlene Sampson who has sufficient courage to risk driving it.

I, Grant Allison, leave my passion for side-burns to Harry Barker.

I, Orville Odum, leave my ability to get away with things in class to Ronald Smiley.

I, Dave Redick, leave my copy of "Charm the Girls and Keep Them" and my place on the basketball team to Jerry Adiska and Ronald Pepper.

I, Mike Dibble, leave my part-time janitor's job to Jerry Kruger.

I, Richard Sampier, leave my blue-ribbon French blood to Richard Seitz.

I, Beatrice Smith, leave my dimples to Joyce Gibson.

I, John Hardy, leave my popularity and collection of eligible telephone numbers to Dick Lengel.

I, Margaret Kegerreis, leave my sneeze to Pat Borgstadt.

I, Leona Karnatz, leave my ability to fall in love to Donna Berry, Pat Ackerman, and Leo Burrell.

We, the Seniors, are sorry Bill Hudge is not a senior so we could will him to Flo Hess.

I, Marjorie Wegienka, bequeath my fiery temper to Shirley Harwood and Phyllis Roberts.

I, Joe Towler, leave my fifth hour carrot to Fred Kagarise.

I, Irene Bunton, bequeath my big bone earrings to stray dogs that keep wandering into school.

I, Don Avery, leave my popularity with the girls to Skeets Adiska.

I, Nancy Patterson, leave my great lust for mean jokes to Bill Bischoff and David Fenn.

I, Esther Woodruff, leave my spattered paint clothes and artistic ability to Herb Smith and John Ed Dexter.

I, Dale Sieloff, leave my unconscious attitude in class to Dean Berlin, Bob Borener, and Andy Domas.

I, Pat Fauser, leave my height to Janet Schrock and Carol Burgar.

I, Lois Phelps, leave my sweet, quiet attitude to Kay Smith and Jean Towler.

I, Isabelle Pegouskie, leave my sophistication to Wilma Travis and Agnes Kartje.

I, Beatrice Union, leave Bob Reeves my oratorical powers.

I, Roxann Gregg, leave my dark hair and flashing eyes to Barbara Duey.

I, Frank Yunkman, will my curly hair to Don Frisbie and John Kennedy.

I, Pat Rattray, leave my pin curls to Lynn Helzerman and Bob Bellers.

I, Kathleen Burt, leave my carefree manner of enjoying myself to Lorena Dysinger.

I, Mac Williams, leave my manly ribs to the band to be used as a portable xylophone.

We, Pearl Wilson and June Belmore, upon re-reading these wills, think it would be best if we just left!

CLASS PROPHECY

As the echoes of time slowly are changing, let us anticipate echoes that will resound in the future.

The tenth reunion is always a joyous occasion with a running thread of sentimentality and a slight realization of the constantly marching time.

None of this is on the surface, however, as the master of ceremonies, Leonard Burrell, rises to make his opening remarks. Mr. Burrell is a world-wide known program producer on television. Near by sits his wife, the former Beatrice Smith, smiling proudly. She has written several books of stories and poems which many children enjoy, especially her own. Most of these books have been interestingly illustrated by Miss Esther Woodruff. Miss Woodruff also teaches the first grade in Lincoln Consolidated School.

The first number on the program is sung by the former Irene Bunton. This talented young woman has already engaged in nation-wide concert tours as well as singing for the President on one occasion. Among the first to compliment her is Frank Yunkman, who studied engineering after his return from overseas. Frank has currently succeeded in ripping off the fender of his twenty-fifth car.

A famous Powers model, Joyce Ackron, is attempting to make an appointment with the successful Detroit cosmetician, McKenzie Williams. Neither appears older than at graduation.

Across the table Stanley Harris is bragging about the new automobile he has designed. The "Kentucky" make, will be presented to Don Avery, famous Tiger third baseman, later in the program.

The new ambassador to Turkey, Larry Jensen, was also well-known for his diplomacy at school. Dan Gross, president of the Michigan Truck Line, is arguing with him over the stunning hat Connie Clark has designed and is now modeling.

A leader in the community, the former Carol Day, reminisses of the senior days. She is currently running for membership in the state legislature. Charles Orrison is managing her campaign and investigating all objectionable people concerned. Closely collaborating is John Hardy, an F. B. I. agent. Mr. Hardy is in debate with Lee Cischke about his interpretation of a villain he has played in a recent hit play. The play, "Don't Shove Me 'Round", was written by Mrs. Ruth Hammond, also a teacher at Lincoln. Much of the scenery and staging for the play was done by Richard Sampier. Mr. Sampier is chief cartoonist for the New York Times.

The Reverend Richard Wright claims raising dairy cattle is stimulating and a change from regular grind. Reverend Wright can also juggle spoons-- a feat he is now performing for the ladies. Meanwhile, his close friend Dr. Larry Schanz, encourages him. Dr. Schanz's book, "Health Without Drugging" is being sold rapidly and is highly recommended by all osteopaths.

After serving in the WAF for two years, Lois Phelps landed a pilot. June Belmore is telling her about the new bobby pin she has invented. You can't feel it or see it when it is there!

This class boasts a famous editor--Alice Towler. Tight schedules keep her busy. Right now she is discussing a current problem with her stenographer, Beatrice Union. Miss Union and Miss Patricia Fauser have aided the editor in many ways, as reporters and doubling as typists.

A forest ranger whose heroism the nation lauded is Jerry Allen, who also does some successful writing. Merton Dibble of the Ypsilanti Police Force holds his attention at the moment with a new gun he has invented.

Two other old friends, the former Misses Marjorie Wegienka and Leona Karnatz live across the street from each other. Rumor has it they couldn't stand each other next door. Their husbands are on the school board.

The former Pearl Wilson has traveled in 27 of the 48 states and is now engaged in raising her little cheerleaders. She and Peggy Borgstadt, supervisory nurse at University Hospital are shaking their heads over the shortcomings of the up-and-coming generation. Shirley Waters, University's best physical therapist, is smiling knowingly at the conversation.

Shirley McFall operates a beauty parlor in Willis. Her close friend, Kathleen Burt is vocational aid counselor in Belleville High School. Both of these young women are enjoying their life and are optimistic about the future.

Nancy Patterson is not only successful in her clerical career, she also likes to show her little nephews and nieces how to tear a car apart and put it together again. Isabelle Pegouskie likes to be present at these demonstrations to make sure none of her brood is there.

The next speaker will be Roxann Gregg who has traveled widely by automobile, and also owns and operates a small restaurant which specializes in foreign foods. Her restaurant is directly opposite of Dale Sieloff's gas station. Recently Dale completed his new exclusive car wash department.

Grant Allison, Air Lines pilot, is trying to persuade Lowell Smith, jockey, that the air is better than the ground. Orville Odum maintains that the rocket ship he has designed to land on the moon is more spectacular than either.

Our saleslady, Patty Rattray, is trying to make a sale of a cherry-wood gavel to Lincoln's principal, Joseph Towler. Dave Redick, Chicago businessman and railroad stockholder, is interested in buying one for the governor of Illinois, his personal friend.

Dr. Margaret Kegerreis, who has just completed her year of internship, has been trying to solicit prospective patients all evening.

Interest, faces, and time may change but human nature does not.

CLASS HISTORY

In 1940 nineteen of our present class entered the doors of Lincoln Consolidated School with bright, expectant faces.

Richard Sampier joined our ranks in the first grade. We proved to be an adventuresome class as we went on a long train ride from Ypsilanti, to Ann Arbor.

In the third grade Charles Orrison, Marjorie Wegienka, and Margaret Kegerreis were added to our numbers. Marge and Margaret had attended school here before that time but had never been in our class. We studied Indians with Miss Kirschbaum and as a climax to our study we gave an Indian play for the rest of the elementary grades.

An exciting event of the fourth grade was climbing out of the windows. We thought it would be more fun than leaving through the doors as everyone else did.

Connie Clark from Ann Arbor and Don Avery came into our class in the fifth grade. The big highlight of that year was the first of our many trips to Greenfield Village.

We received the largest addition to our class in the sixth grade. They were: June Belmore from Lincoln Park, Peg Borgstadt from Woodruff School in Ypsilanti, Pat Rattray from Saline, Lowell Smith from Detroit, Larry Jenson, and Isabelle Pegouskie.

The seventh grade marked a turning point in our history. We had entered Junior High School and to us it was both frightening and exciting. Roxann Gregg from Milan, Orville Odum from Illinois, Beatrice Union from Harriet School in Ypsilanti, Kathleen Burt, and Lee Cischke arrived.

The South's loss was the North's gain as Lois Phelps came to us in the eighth grade.

In the ninth grade Pat Fauser from Ypsilanti and Mac Williams enrolled at our school. The big event of the year was the presentation of the Dickens' "Christmas Carol" by our class. It proved to be a great success. We also had our first "grown up" party as members of the Senior High School.

Dave Redick from Allan Park and Stan Harris from Kentucky and Nancy Patterson became members of our class in the tenth grade. It was an exciting year. We had our first rainy picnic, our last trip to Greenfield Village, and our first and last Sophomore initiation.

As Juniors we became great actors and actresses and entertained the community with three one-act plays. We took the Seniors to the South Seas for the Junior-Senior Banquet. Ypsilanti High School suffered a great loss as Leonard Burrell left and decided to come here.

Finally we reached our last year in school life, we were SENIORS. Two former students of Lincoln, Ruth Hammond and Frank Yunkman, came back to complete their high school education. One of our many activities was our Senior play, "One Wild Night". Other events were the Christmas Dance, the Junior-Senior Banquet, and the Alumni Banquet. Now we are approaching graduation, and we have to say good-by to dear old Lincoln and all our friends and teachers.

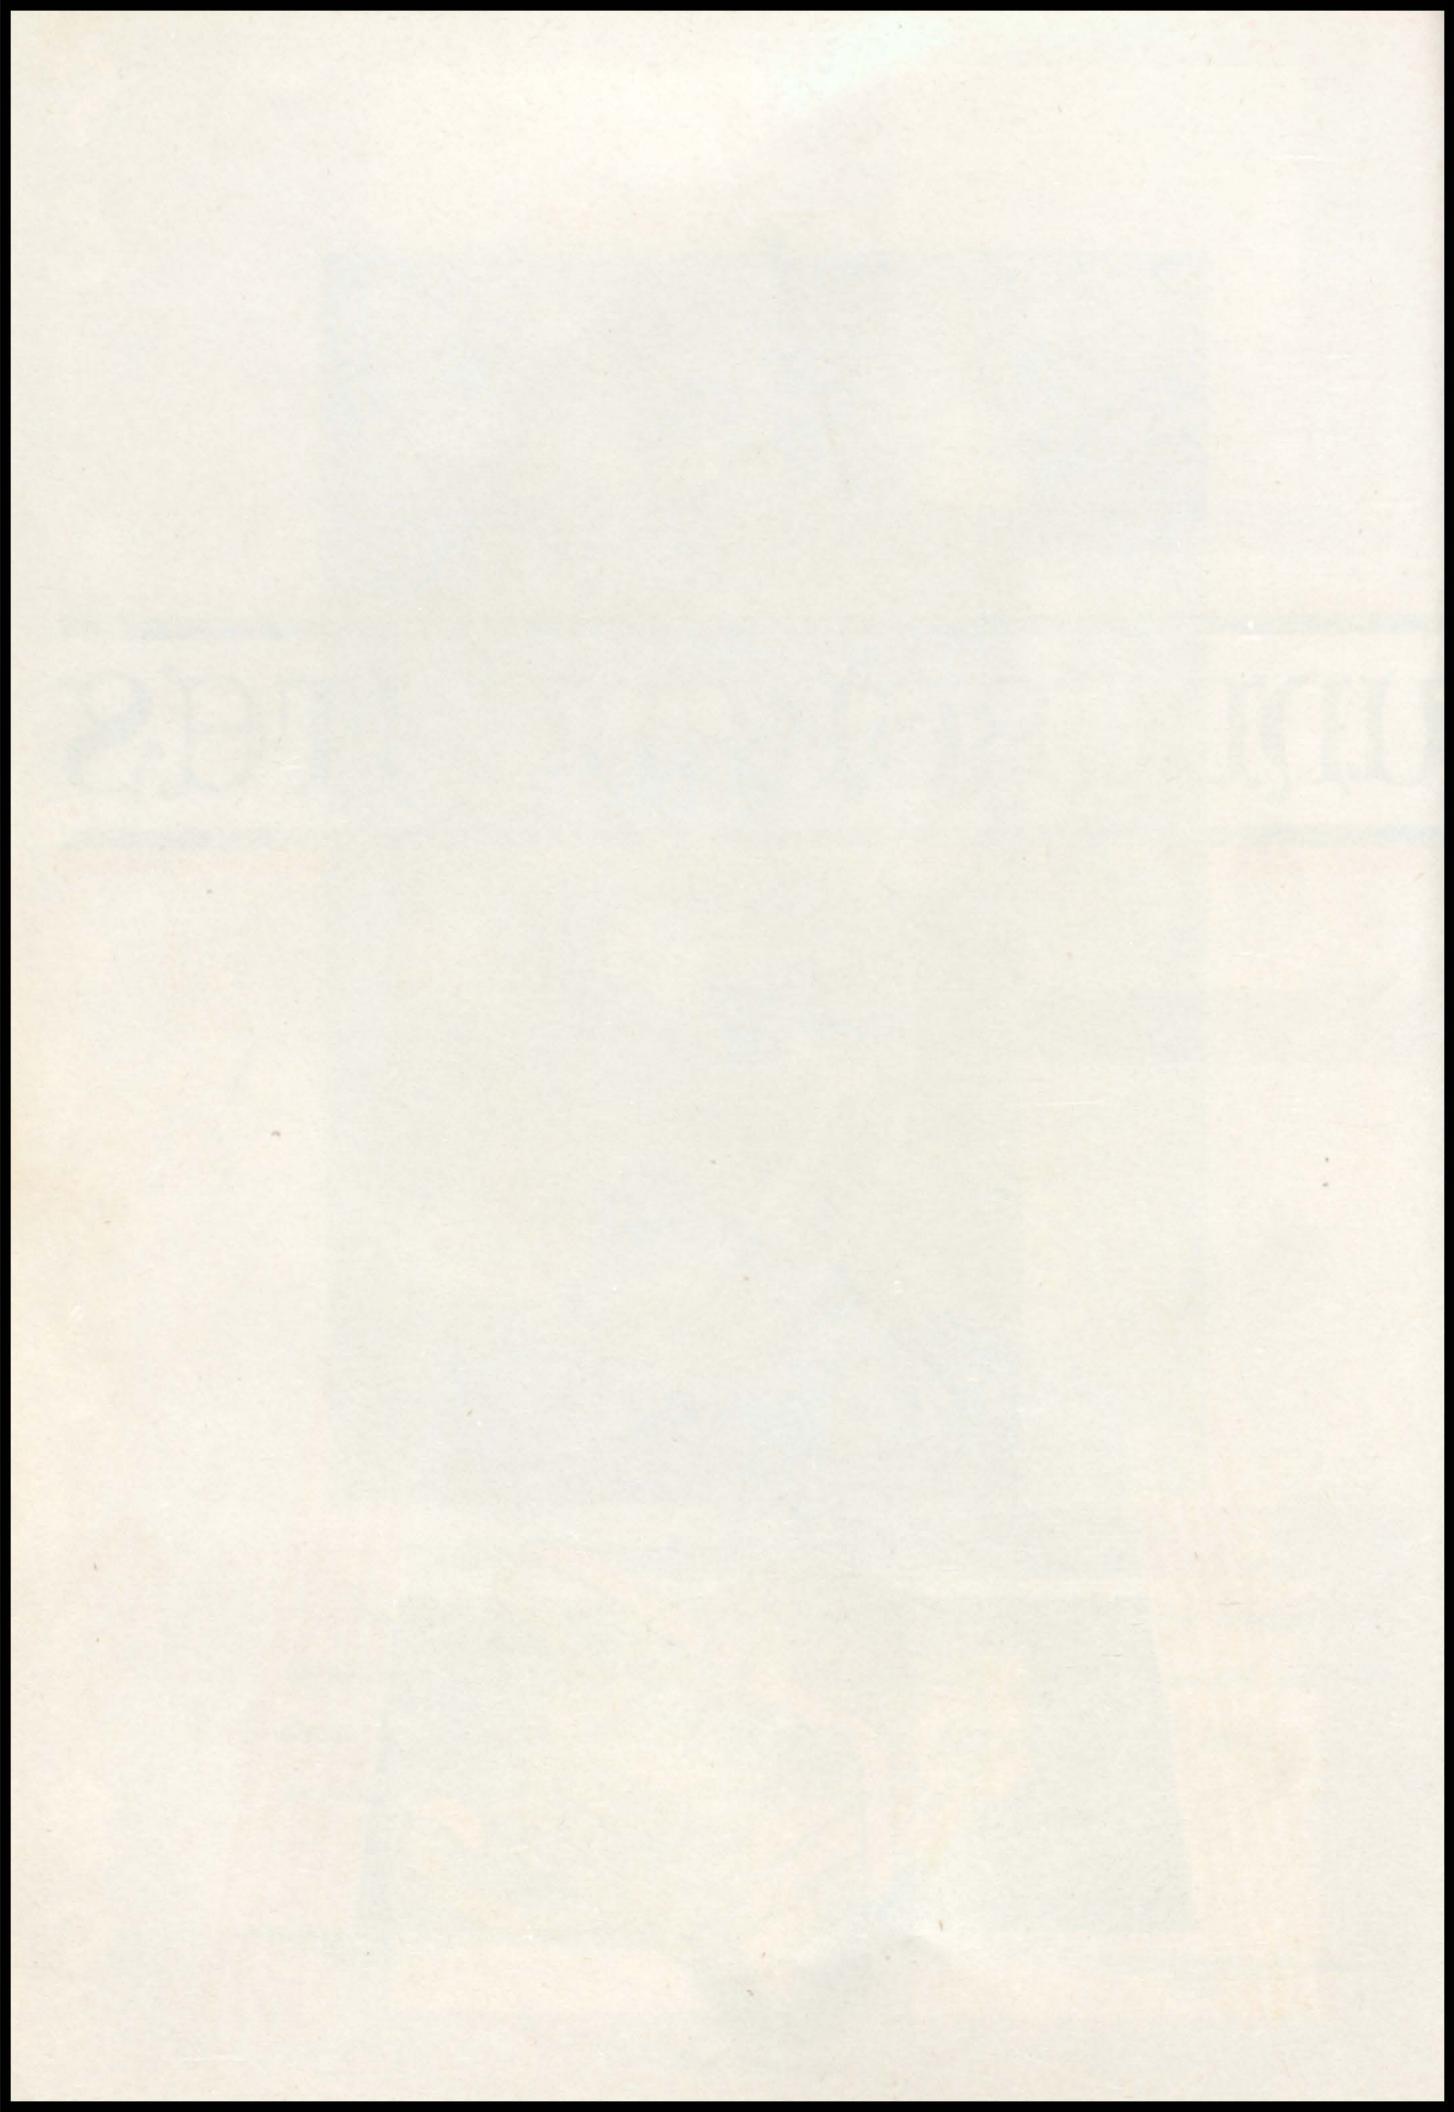

We the senior class would like to thank Miss McGregor for helping us to make up our senior annual. Her helpful attitude has helped and encouraged the class to go on to higher and higher heights. Again we would like to say thank you for everything.

THE ECHO OF SCHOOL DAYS

The pencils and notebooks are put away
In a cover of dust they lay.
Open the pages and you will see
Our memories of yesterday:
Our first day of school when we were kids
Til the day we said good-by
To the dear old school where we've grown up
And where our memories lie.
The little childish pranks we played
Were all a part of school day fun.
The paper airplanes and thumbtacks on the chair
Are things we all have done.
The teachers have forgotten the things we did;
Others have taken our places.
They do the mischief we used to do;
Happiness shines in their faces.
There my school life lies
In a cover of dust and age,
The wonderful memories of yesterday
Live on every page.

Remember these?

We're beginning to lose our fear of teachers and our goal looks a wee bit closer.

They had us well in hand during this age.

A MEMORY OF SCHOOL DAYS

Lincoln school, as I pass through,
I carry away a part of you.
A memory of our school days,
Of picnics, dances and class plays.
A memory of everything,
The beautiful schoolground in the spring
The trees and flowers in every place.
The beaming smile on a happy face.
The stages of growing up that I've been through,
The knowledge that I received from you.
I'll take with me a book or two,
A love of music I learned from you.
I'll take with me a picture dear
Of all the years I've spent here.
When I have left you far behind
A memory of Lincoln will haunt my mind.

OUR FAREWELL

Farewell to the school,
Farewell to my friends
Farewell to the teachers
May our friendship never end.

Our class is leaving
But let our memories stay ;
Give us just a cup of kindness
As we pass along life's way.

Some time when you pass
Our picture in the hall
Look up and remember
Those faces on the wall.

Remember how we worked with
And "fooled around" a bit.

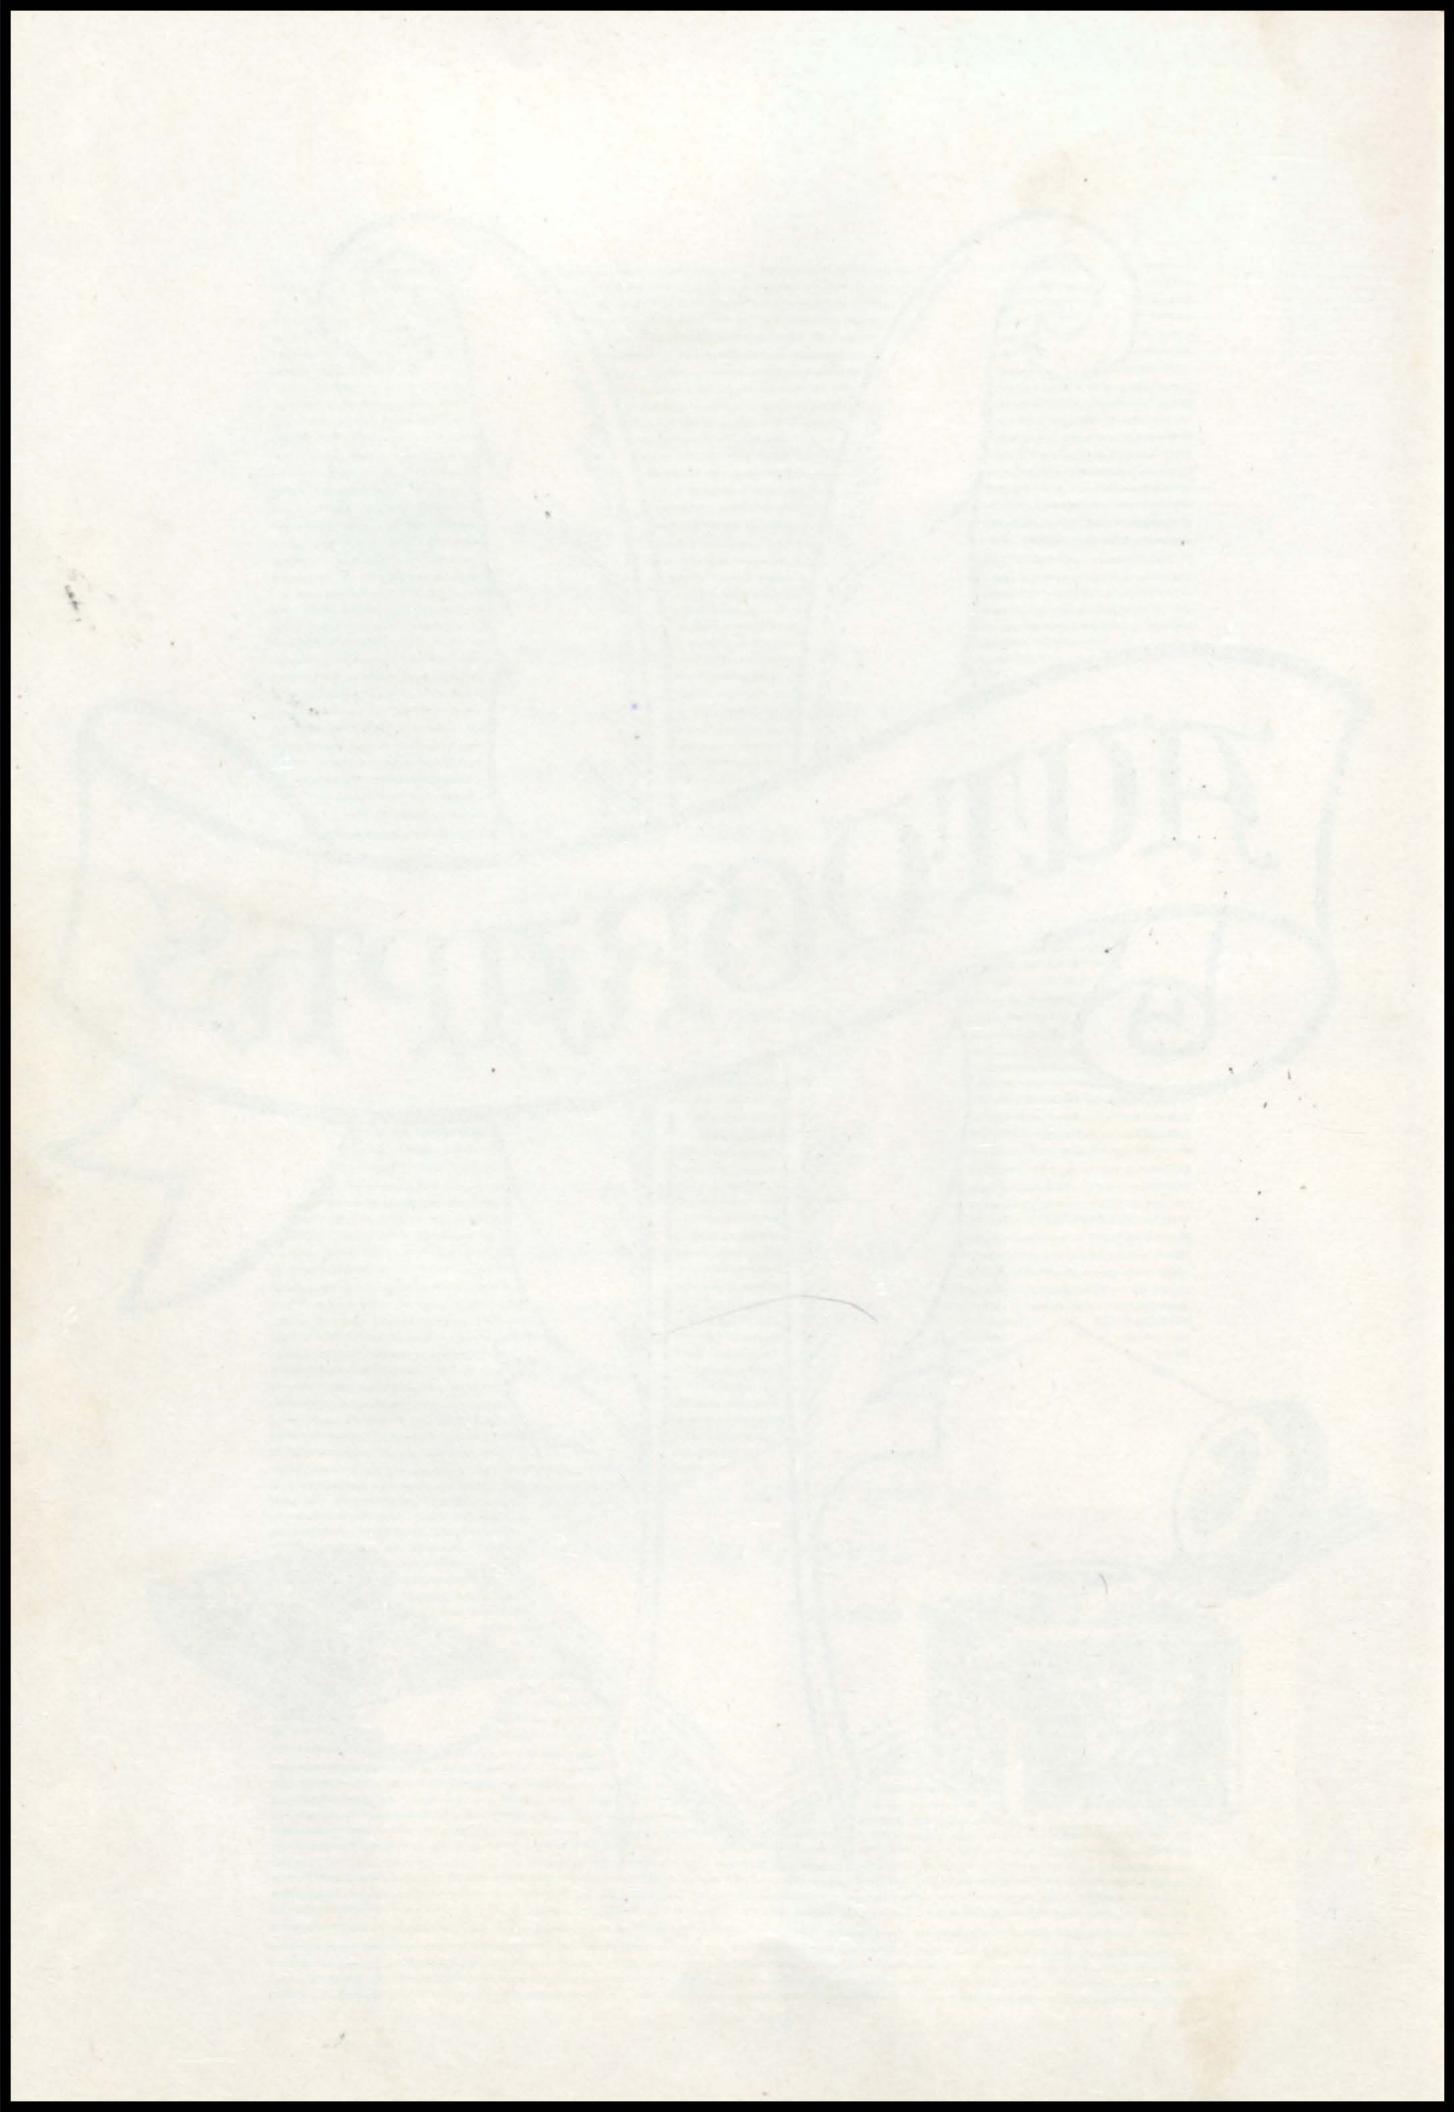

Our path to the future
May be brightly lit;
But still it is hard to leave you
It's hard to say "good-by".
